Editorial Notes:

- a) This dataset is a transcription of the manuscript records at the New-York Historical Society.
- b) We have attempted to preserve original spellings and punctuation for the names of people and descriptions of property—with the exception of superscripts, which have been brought down to the line followed by a period (as in Colo. William Smith in record number 75010).
- c) We did not transcribe the total property evaluations or the tax owed, since these fields were calculated from fields we did transcribe: the real estate and personal estate evaluations.
- d) The records for each ward were compiled by different individuals, which resulted in discrepancies in the kinds of information collected.
- e) Street names were in flux in 1793—and a number of streets were renamed in the months after these tax records were compiled. For ease of reference, we have included not only the street names given in the original records but also, in many cases, subsequent street names. In many cases we have silently standardized spellings of street names in use in 1793 and supplied the street type (Street, Slip, Wharf, etc.) when missing.
- f) Street numbers were also in flux in 1793—some streets were not numbered and many streets were renumbered later in 1793 or in early 1794. As a result, the street numbers in the 1793 tax record don't always align with modern street addresses. In our observation, the numbers employed in the 1794 city directory for New York correlate much better with those shown in Perrin's Maps of the City of New York (published in the 1850s) and those still in use.
